Motion is relative: it depends on the frame of reference

For the person on the platform (frame of reference: the station), the passenger is moving: their position changes.

For another passenger (frame of reference: the train), the passenger is at rest: their position does not change.